Karie's Garden of Goodness

Karie's stomach grumbled loudly. Grrr Grogg!
Karie's mother sighed, "I'm sorry you don't have enough food to eat.
With COVID-19 restrictions, I have less work days at the factory now that it is producing less goods. That means less income to buy food."
"It's okay, Mother," Karie said bravely.

That night, Karie went to bed hungry again.
She and her single mum had less food to eat with each passing day.

Without proper meals, Karie became easily tired and could not focus on her schoolwork.
Worry loomed over her like dark clouds.

"I wish we have enough food to eat and don't have to fret about our next meal all the time."

One day, World Vision friends provided Karie's family with a home gardening kit, along with training to grow their own crops.

"We'll have nutritious food right in our backyard!" Karie's mother said in relief.

Karie's worry clouds shrank, and her face brightened up. "I want to help look after our garden!" she said.

Karie worked hard to learn to plant the seedlings. She watered the plants daily with great care.

One morning, Karie stepped out of their home to water the plants as usual.

She whooped with delight when she saw their garden flourishing with the juicy goodness of ripe vegetables.

"Mother, we can stop worrying about our next meal!"

Karie exclaimed at the miracle of food supply right in her backyard. "These vegetables are healthy food that will also give me energy to focus on my studies now."

Here's Karie tending to the plants her family grew from the vegetable seeds they received from World Vision. Eating a variety of nutritious food keeps her healthy and protected against sickness.

Swangirai's Sachets of Strength

Swangirai, now in fourth grade, talked about his dreams to become a police officer with his friends. His friends were swept up by Swangirai's charisma.

Pointing at a picture of a baby whose face, hands and feet were swollen, the boys asked in astonishment, "Is that you, Swangirai?"

Swangirai nodded. "If World Vision had not helped me, I would not be alive now."

12 years ago, Swangirai was crying uncontrollably. His mother thought he had masato—a disease that many in the local community believe is caused by breastfeeding while pregnant.

However, Baby Swangirai was actually suffering from malnutrition.

"This is Plumpy'Nut, a ready-to-use therapeutic feed," the nutritionist said, feeding a sachet to Swangirai, who instantly stopped crying. "In less than 12 days, Swangirai's condition will improve."

Now, a strong, healthy and jovial boy, Swangirai said,
"When I grow up,
I will not let anyone in my family
go hungry."

Here's Swangirai eating Plumpy'Nut, that helped him recover from malnutrition. He is now a healthy boy thanks to timely treatment.

Chileleko's Multiplication of Goats

Chileleko remembered the day that her older sisters returned early from school. They looked very sad.

"Mother," her older sister said. "Teacher says we cannot go back to school because we didn't pay our school fees."

"I'm sorry," Mother said. "These odd jobs that your father and I are doing don't pay much money."

"Mama, I'm hungry," Chileleko interrupted, as her stomach grumbled.

"We need a miracle,"
Mother said to father.

Mother gave her children the only food she had left, whilst she and Father plucked wild berries and plants for their own dinner.

That miracle came when Mother brought five goats home one day.

"World Vision has trained my mum to be a goat farmer and we can now pay the school fees and go back to school!"

"One, two...five...twenty-three goats!" Chileleko counted. Mother sold a few goats to pay for school fees and study materials.

Father sold a few more to start a vegetable garden. The goats' milk and the vegetables provided food and income for Chileleko's family.

Chileleko cheered at the good news. She eagerly helped to care for the goats daily.

A few months later, three baby goats were born. The goats multiplied quickly over time.

Now, Chileleko happily helps with their goats and garden when she is home. I hope to be a teacher someday, she thought. "I want to help other children to learn and have brighter futures!"

Here's Chileleko actively participating in class. Through the gifts of goats, Chileleko's mother Vivienne has income to pay for her children's school fees and family necessities.

Sakina's School Supplies of Hope

10-year-old Sakina enjoyed learning new things in school. There was one problem though. Her school could not afford to buy tables and chairs.

Sakina sat on the ground for lessons. She was sometimes soaking wet from rain, always dirty and often sick after school.

Sakina found it hard to practise her writing whilst seated on the floor.

Once, a snake slithered under a classmate's mat. Sakina was terrified for weeks.

Scorpions also crawled around during lessons. Sakina was always scared that she would be the next one to get stung.

Things changed when World Vision friends stepped in to support Sakina's school and community.

"I am so proud of my school now. I want to become a teacher when I grow up."

Sakina was able to stay clean and fell sick less often. When she could finally focus on her lessons in school, her grades improved.

The school received new tables, chairs, handwashing devices, cabinets, teaching materials and school kits for the children.

Here's Sakina sitting comfortably in her newly-furnished classroom which is now safe and conducive for learning.

Learning gives a child the wings to fly high

A birth certificate is proof of a child's existence and identity.

It is needed for:

- Enrollment in certain schools
- Registration for examinations
- Access to healthcare
- Protection from child trafficking, child marriage and child labour

But 1/4 of children under the age of 5 worldwide have no birth certificate, limiting their options for a better future.

Xiaoyang's Water of Life

Slop slop! Xiaoyang's thin shoes were completely caked with mud. Clang, clang! The empty pails in his hands knocked against each other.

Xiaoyang should have been in school attending lessons. Instead, he had to make long trips down the hill to the village well to collect water.

It took an hour to fill his pails and haul them up the hill.

Xiaoyang and his schoolmates had no choice! The well water was polluted. But the students needed water to drink, cook lunch, wash hands and flush the toilets.

"I wish I could have clean water at the turn of a tap."

Xiaoyang's stomach churned. Oh dear, he hoped that he would not get dysentery! Some of his classmates already fell sick from drinking unclean water.

One day, a group of people wearing bright orange t-shirts visited their school. "Let's build a new water system."

Xiaoyang volunteered to help lay water pipes.

Finally, the day came when the students gathered around the school tap. Crystal clear clean water gushed out! What a miracle!

"I will treasure this gift of clean water. Handwashing is important! Good hygiene protects us from diseases."

Here's Xiaoyang washing his hands at the school's new handwashing station.

★ Marjorie's Shelter from the storm

Marjorie woke up shivering. She had not slept a wink! Chilly raindrops had dripped on her all night.

Before Typhoon Rai devastated her neighbourhood, Marjorie lived in a small house with her blind mother and ten siblings.

Her father had passed away from illness. The family had difficulty making ends meet. But at least they had a roof over their heads.

The typhoon changed that. The raging winds blew away the roof of her house.

Her family of 12 had to squeeze into a small, cramp make-shift shelter with a thin canvas sheet as its roof.

What was more worrying was her little cousin, Vhence. Typhoon Rai had changed him from a bubbly boy into a nervous child who feared loud noises.

She wished somebody knew what they were going through.

Marjorie saw several people picking their way carefully through dangerous debris. It was her World Vision friend, Mr Nasayao, who brought tarpaulin and rope with him!

"I have a safer place to sleep in at night. I will not get wet when it rains."

Marjorie's mother was elated when the tarpaulin was given to her. Immediately, she threw the tarpaulin over the thin canvas roof and fastened it with the rope.

"This will keep the rain out!" she said cheerfully.

This would not be the last of Mr Nasayao's visits. Marjorie listened as he spoke with the village adults about bringing in more building supplies to help them rebuild their homes. Typhoon Rai is not the end of their future!

Here's Marjorie and Vhence in their home. They are now protected from the rain and sun while the family waits to repair their house.

Lesly's Timely friendship

Lesly's father had passed away from heart complications. He was the sole breadwinner—selling fish to feed his family.

"What's going to happen to us now?"

Her elder brother and sister were too young to go out to work. There was not enough money to pay for children's education and little even for this month's food!

With her father's death, Lesly's wish to become a medical worker felt like an unachievable dream.

Lesly's World Vision sponsor encouraged her not to give up!

As a sponsored child, Lesly received educational supplies and progressed to college. Then, she applied for World Vision's college scholarship which paid for her college expenses. She studied hard and successfully graduated with a degree in Pharmacy!

"My sponsor's generosity taught me to value other people, especially those who need help. Remote areas have little access to medicine. People fall sick but cannot get help."

She wondered how she could help people living in remote areas. Thus, she decided to open a pharmacy in a small town.

"My heart flutters with happiness each time I hand a patient the medicine he needs to recover. I want to dedicate my success to my father. I believe he is proud of us," she said with a smile.

Lesly is a former World Vision sponsored child who is now a licensed pharmacist. Instead of working in a big pharmaceutical company, she and her family worked hard to start a pharmacy business in a small town so residents can access quality medicines and healthcare.

Orphans

The United Nations defines an orphan as a child who has lost one or both parents.

Children should not be burdened with loss and grief at such a young age. Yet, this is the reality for many orphaned children. In the face of despair, your sponsorship will bring much-needed comfort and assurance to them. Be the beacon that lights the path for an orphaned child.

My family Was Transformed

"I used to live in an unhappy home. My parents used a whip, and violence to discipline my brothers and I. They also called me terrible names.

I did not want to talk to my parents. One day, after attending the Celebrating Families workshop, my dad and mum gave me a heartfelt letter that wrote, 'We are sorry for being tough on you and the bad words we used on you. Please forgive us.'

I could not believe my eyes. My parents realised they were wrong. Since then, I was able to talk to my parents without fear. Three months on, my dad asked me at the family table, 'Are we still on probation?' I told my dad, "You are completely forgiven."

Makumba (centre) now receives words of love from her parents.

"Love always protects, always trusts, always hopes, always perseveres. Love never fails."

1 Corinthians 13:7-8

Celebrating Families

Child wellbeing is strongly influenced by the environment that surrounds children, especially their family relationships. Celebrating Families is part of World Vision's programmes for the spiritual nurture of children. It is run jointly with community faith leaders and equips parents in at-risk families to heal and strengthen their relationships with their children.

Building Our Youth for the future

Our youth engagement programmes aim to build a young community who are driven by a shared conviction to help the world's most vulnerable children to overcome poverty and injustice through service and advocacy.

"Being able to work with overseas beneficiaries gave us the opportunity to gain a better understanding of their social issues and cultural practices. This enabled us to cultivate greater sensitivity towards cultural differences and respect others' perspectives. Their stories really inspire us to do something positive that will impact the lives of these vulnerable youths."

Note: In the event we receive more donations to buy gifts for a particular cause or community than needed, World Vision will channel the funds to make up for the shortfall in donations for gifts to children in other countries. According to Singapore's charity regulations, the total expenses incurred in a financial year must not exceed 30% of total donations collected through the public appeals. At World Vision Singapore, we streamline our operations for maximum impact for vulnerable children and have kept our expenditure to 17.2% of total funds raised in FY21.
